NEW PLANS FOR COAST ROAD ACCEPTED

BIDS FOR WORK ON PESCADERO
TO SANTA CRUZ COUNTY ROAD
TO BE OPENED BY SUPERVISORS
MONDAY, MARCH 20.

The San Mateo county board of supervisors held a special meeting Monday morning, the object of the meeting being to consider the plans and specifications for the repairing and surfacing of the road from Pescadero to the Santa Cruz county line. At a meeting some weeks ago the board appropriated $50,000 from the county general fund for the work on this road.

At the last meeting County Engineer George Kneese submitted plans for this work, but as the board desired to have the plans for the road worked out in sections Mr. Kneese revised his specifications and plans, and these were approved at the meeting this week. By unanimous vote of the board members, County Clerk Elizabeth M. Nash was instructed to advertise for bids for this work, these bids to be opened at the regular board meeting to be held March 20th.

A communication was read from John S. Dunnigan, clerk of the San Francisco supervisors, acknowledging receipt of an invitation from the San Mateo supervisors for a meeting on the Dumbarton bridge question. Dunnigan stated the special bridge committee of the San Francisco board would be pleased to meet at any time, and asked that due notice of the time be given Supervisor Richard J. Welch, chairman of the committee.

A letter was also received from George W. Gearhard, secretary of the Civic League of Improvement Clubs of San Francisco, inclosing a copy of a resolution adopted by that organization calling for the appointment of a special bridge committee to co-operate with the supervisors' committees.

A request was made by Miss Helen Chesebrough, vice-chairman of the San Mateo Chapter of the American Red Cross, for the use of a room for storage purposes. The chapter has a quantity of bandages, cloth, etc., which it proposes to turn over to the county for use at the county hospital. County Purchasing Agent E. H. Werder was instructed to co-operate with Miss Chesebrough in finding the necessary space.

The next meeting of the board will be held on Monday, March 6th.

SO. S. F. WATER COMPANY REPORTS TO R. R. COMMISSION

The South San Francisco Water Company, operating in South San Francisco, reports to the Railroad Commission for the year 1921 that its operating revenue was $43,456.39; operating expenses, $49,377.42, giving a net operating loss of $5,921.03. Miscellaneous non-operating revenue amounted to $445.21. Interest, rent and other deductions totaled $27.75. The net corporate loss for the year was $5503.57. The surplus at the beginning of the year amounted to $8559.28. Miscellaneous additions to surplus for 1921 amounted to $4.10 and miscellaneous deductions were 60 cents. The accumulated surplus at the end of the year amounted to $3059.21.

PIPE WORKS APPEALS FROM JUDGE SMITH'S DECISION

J. E. Reardon, San Francisco attorney, representing the Schaw-Batcher Pipe Works of this city, has filed an appeal in the superior court from the decision of Justice of the Peace William J. Smith of South San Francisco, in which W. S. Taylor was awarded a judgment amounting to $198.25 for damages to his automobile as the result of a collision between his car and that of the pipe works at the intersection of Lux and Linden avenues in South San Francisco, July 1, 1920. Taylor charged that the pipe works' machine was operated in a careless manner and was exceeding the speed limit at the corner. He was represented by Attorney J. W. Coleberd.

TRUSTEES ACCEPT PLANS FOR SEWER

Bond Issue Proposition to Go on Ballot at April Election; Circus
Coming to Town.

Steps were taken at Monday evening's meeting of the city trustees to vacate certain streets in the vicinity of the W. J. Martin school building in the north part of town, in order that the tract adjacent to the school could be replatted. As soon as this is done, sidewalks leading to the school will be laid. Another resolution vacated several streets along the southern side of the subdivision known as Peck's Lots.

South San Francisco is to have a circus during the latter part of March. A representative of Howe's Great London Shows was at the meeting, and was granted permission for his company to show here. The man carefully specified that his concern was not putting on anything like a street carnival, the London Shows being distinctly a wild animal circus.

A soft drink license was granted to T. McManus and James Herlihy for the Capitol Hotel. The applications of Silas Carlson for a soft drink license at 255 Grand avenue and of Angelo Genovesi at 125 Aspen avenue were again laid over for consideration, this being the second time.

Steps looking toward the construction of an extension of the sanitary and storm water sewer were taken.

Plans for the city sewer extension were submitted by City Engineer Geo. Kneese and adopted by resolution. These plans show the location of the main line of the sewer along San Bruno road from Chapman avenue to the north boundary of the city, and down Butler road, skirting the Western Pipe and Steel Company's holdings, into the bay. The engineer gave the probable cost of construction as nearly $40,000. The proposition to issue bonds for this improvement work will be placed on the city ballot in April.

A discussion of the failure of a certain plumber in this city to relay pavement which he has had occasion to cut in installing sewer connections came in for considerable discussion, and will probably result in the deposit of $10, which plumbers are required to put up before cutting pavement, being raised to $25.

The board will meet again next Monday evening.

WANT HELP ON TAX RETURNS? OFFICIAL HERE MARCH 1-2-3

Anybody wishing assistance to make out his income tax returns may get it March 1st, 2d and 3d at the city hall, when Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Frank L. Foppiano will assist him. The city trustees gave their consent Monday evening to this official's opening temporary offices in the city hall on these dates to help all who need help with their income tax blanks. Have all figures on income and expenditures ready when you go to see Foppiano, and he'll do the rest quickly and painlessly.

NEW SON BORN IN VINCENZINI FAMILY

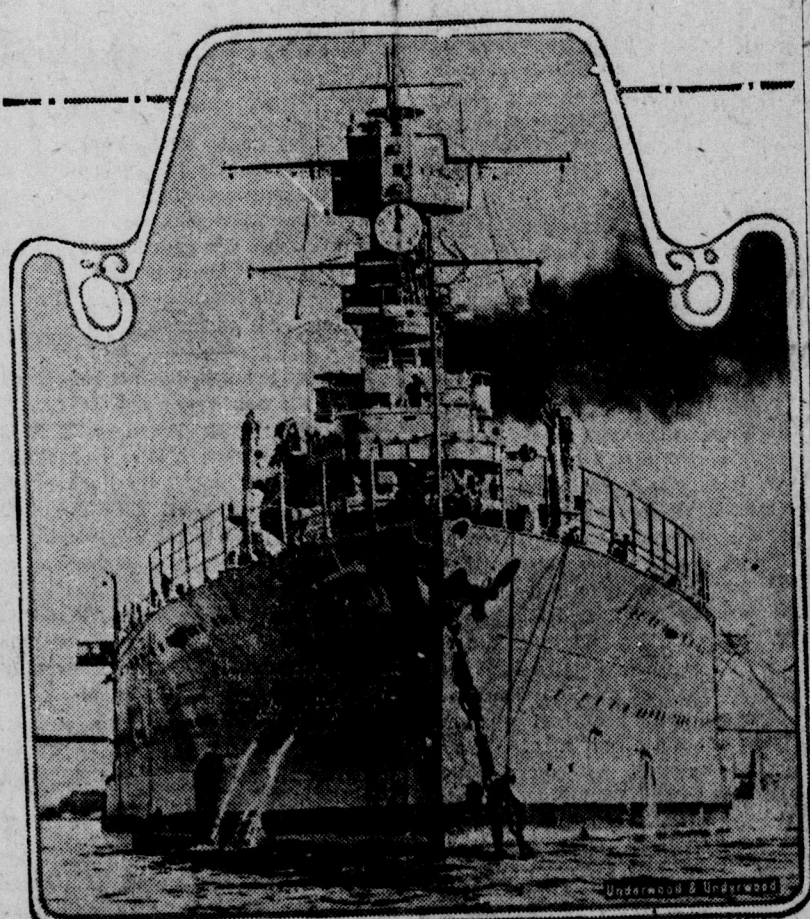

A new son arrived in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Vincenzini on Washington's birthday, a boy that weighed 14 pounds. At least, that is the weight that the proud father is telling his friends. Lawrence Vincenzini, uncle of the new son, presented the mother with a beautiful diamond ring in honor of the happy event.

Flatters turns heads; advice turns noses.

HAVE YOU REGISTERED?
IF NOT, WHY HAVEN'T YOU?

Mr. and Mrs. Voter, have you registered? If not, why not?
There are only a few days more for you to register in if you wish to vote at the city election in April. And you should vote, everybody entitled to a vote should exercise the privilege.
March 10th is the last day in which you can register for the city election. DO YOUR DUTY! REGISTER!

U. S. S. California Seen Bows-on

A remarkable bows-on view of the superdreadnaught California, at anchor in San Diego bay, which gives a real idea of the floating fort's great bulk and width. She is 97 1/2 feet wide, or about 50 per cent wider than a wide city street.

MERCHANTS' ASSO'N DISCUSSES BUILDING

Committee Appointed to Work Out
Plan; Chas. Elder New Secretary.

The stimulating of building in South San Francisco was one of the principal topics of discussion at the meeting of the Merchants' Association Thursday evening of last. Various plans for doing this were suggested, and finally a committee, consisting of President H. Cavassa, H. Viette, A. J. Eschelbach and Robert Speed, was appointed to see what can be done toward getting action in this matter. This committee will probably have an announcement to make in the near future.

The installation of an electrolite lighting system in the business section of town again came up, and C. F. Schurk was requested to secure some definite information on this subject or have representatives of companies dealing in the electrolites meet the city trustees and Merchants' Association committee as soon as possible.

The proposition to have a secretary for the association who will be able to devote a large part of his time to the organization's work came up, and Charles Elder was given this appointment. An effort will be made to have Mr. Elder also appointed secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Judge George H. Buck has selected the names of thirty persons who will serve as grand jurors in the San Mateo county superior court during the year 1922, or until a new list of jurors shall be provided.

The list has been delivered to County Clerk Elizabeth M. Nash with a request that those whose names appear thereon be notified of their selection. The list for the first township is as follows:

Emma Woolsey, Phoebe Laumeister, Walter P. Fahey, Rose Galli, Edna McGovern, Josephine Zaro, Roderick Tibbitts, Joseph D. Altieri, Augusta E. Holliday, Catherine Foley.

MRS. LEMA DIES AFTER PROTRACTED ILLNESS

Mrs. Minnie Lema, aged 23 years, died Sunday at the family home at 169 Aspen avenue, after a protracted illness. The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the late residence. A high requiem mass was celebrated at All Souls' Church, with interment at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mrs. Lema is survived by her husband, Charles Lema; a son and daughter, Clarence and Florence Lema; a sister, Mrs. Mary Bernard; a brother, Manuel Verra, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Verra.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Car Plunges Over Bank on Crystal
Springs Road Sunday.

Mrs. Grace McKean, 808 Webster street, San Francisco, was killed and Mrs. Frank Gillen, also of San Francisco, was seriously injured on the Crystal Springs road Sunday, when the automobile in which they were riding left the highway and plunged into San Mateo creek.

Mrs. McKean was pinned beneath the overturned machine. She died of a skull fracture and internal injuries while being rushed to the Mills Memorial Hospital by C. Nealen of Millbrae, who discovered the accident.

Walter M. McKean, husband of the woman and driver of the car, escaped with slight injuries. Others in the machine were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gillen, Twenty-third and Mission streets, San Francisco; Miss Julia Hogan, Ninth and Folsom streets, San Francisco, and W. W. Devlin, 396 First street, San Francisco, said to be an employee in the San Francisco custom house.

All were cut and bruised, with the exception of Mrs. Gillen, who was said to have received an injury to her spine and possible internal injuries. The party was brought to the hospital by passing motorists.

McKean said the accident happened when he lost control of the machine on a slight grade, due to the wetness of the roadway. The automobile plunged through a portion of a small bridge and turned over after falling a distance of fifteen feet into the creek. It was reported.

PLUCKY BURLINGAME WOMAN SHOOT'S BURGLAR

Miss Elsie Clark, manager of the Woman's Exchange of North Burlingame fought a one-sided gun duel with burglars at her place of business Saturday night.

Returning from a visit with friends, Miss Clark discovered two prowlers attempting to force a rear entrance to the building, according to her story. One of the men could be dimly seen near a rear window, while another was apparently attempting to pick the lock of the back door.

Miss Clark shot two bullets through the door just as the burglar was forcing the lock. The bullets were from a .38 caliber revolver with which Miss Clark had recently armed her establishment.

A spatter of blood on the walls and steps of the building and a trail of blood leading from the scene to a point where the men are believed to have made good their escape, attested the good aim of Miss Clark.

Miss Clark was unable to furnish a description of the pair.

SO. S. F. SEAL SALES LARGEST IN COUNTY

This City Outstrips All Other County
Towns in Money Contributed to Combat Tuberculosis.

The announcement by Mary Gowen Lansdale, chairman of the Christmas seal campaign last December, of the total sales by towns of the seals, brings to light the fact that South San Francisco stood first in the county in point of money contributed to the fight against tuberculosis.

Mrs. Lansdale's report was made public Tuesday of this week. Its delay was occasioned by the slowness of reports coming in from distant parts of the county and the fact that in some instances where stamps were sent out by mail neither stamps nor money was returned.

In South San Francisco the drive was under the chairmanship of F. A. Cunningham, and three-fourths of the money collected here was retained for work in this city.

The report of the sale by towns and districts is as follows:

GAME WARDEN ARRESTS JAP FISHER AFTER LONG CHASE

After a chase of nearly ten miles by Game Wardens Jack Burke of Daly City and M. S. Clark of San Francisco, Y. Yoshifiji, said to be a leader of Japanese game law violators, was overhauled and arrested by the officers near Columbia Beach last Sunday.

Yoshifiji was charged with illegally taking steelhead salmon and was cited to appear before Judge Ray Griffin at Redwood City, who has twice fined the Japanese for violation of game laws during the past year.

Suspecting that steelhead salmon were being caught in the creeks near Pescadero by Japanese, Burke and Clark headed for Yoshifiji's ranch near Pescadero last Sunday.

Near Pescadero Burke in his machine met the Jap, also driving. When the suspect recognized the officer he turned about and dashed away. An exciting chase followed, in which Yoshifiji attempted to get rid of a cargo of freshly caught fish.

Burke leaped to the running board of the machine as the officers' car came abreast of the Jap and just as the last of the fish were being sown along the road.

Yoshifiji, said to be a leader in Japanese game poaching activities in the Pescadero district, is manager of a ranch employing several of his countrymen. It is said the party, numbering six men, has paid a total of more than $1000 in fines for game law violations during the past few months.

The Mandolin Club met Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cadero. The club has been inactive for several weeks, due to illness among its members, but will continue its weekly rehearsals from this time on.

GOV. STEPHENS LISTENS TO PROTEST

POINTS LODGE COMPLAINT WITH STATE EXECUTIVE AND URGE MOODY'S DISMISSAL.

Nearly 300 representatives from various Chambers of Commerce and civic bodies in San Mateo county made up the delegation that went to Sacramento Monday to protest to Governor W. D. Stephens against the installation of a drawbridge on the S. P. main line at Seventh and Channel streets, San Francisco, and to urge the ousting from office of F. S. Moody of the State Harbor Commission. The delegates were cordially received by the governor, who promised to look thoroughly into the matter in hand.

Arriving at Sacramento promptly at 1:15 p. m., the delegates were taken directly to the state house and were ushered into the governor's room. Later they adjourned to the assembly room, where the governor met them.

Daniel C. Imboden, secretary of the Three Cities Chamber of Commerce, first placed the case of the San Mateo boosters before the governor, and demanded the removal from office of Harbor Commissioner Moody because of Moody's use of his office for furthering his private interests. Imboden also urged the governor to order the Harbor Commission to withdraw from the drawbridge fight.

The governor, in responding to the peninsula delegates, declared that he knew very little about the drawbridge matter until two or three weeks ago, and had been hearing a great deal about it ever since. He said he would take the matter under immediate consideration and would let the people of San Mateo county know shortly what his decision in the matter would be. He thanked the committee for coming to Sacramento, and stated that he had no interest in the matter except that of doing his duty. He declared that he would arrive at a decision that would safeguard the best interests of the people of California in the matter.

The delegates on their return declared they believed their errand would bring an issue of the question satisfactory to residents on the peninsula.

Five delegates from South San Francisco were in the party, these being Mrs. F. A. Cunningham, Mrs. A. Hynding, Mrs. E. C. Peck, Mrs. E. Coffinberry, and Mrs. J. G. Walker. All were from the Woman's Club of this city.

MRS. ROSE MARTINELLI IS GIVEN INTERLOCUTORY DECREE

Mrs. Rose Martinelli was last week awarded an interlocutory decree of divorce from Alandino Martinelli, on her complaint charging extreme cruelty. Henry Minnucci was ordered by the court to deliver to Mrs. Martinelli the household furnishings, community property of the couple, and stored with him. Mrs. Martinelli was also given the right to resume the use of her maiden name, Rosie Quilici. She was represented by Attorney Benj. A. Purrington of San Francisco.

SERMON ON WASHINGTON AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Rev. E. H. Molony preached on Washington at Grace Church last Sunday. An extract from his sermon follows:

"Frank and manly self-examination will force one to confess that the common excuse of being too tired or too busy to go to church is merely commonplace.

"Our greatest and therefore busiest men found religion and public worship an aid to meet responsibility. Instance in our own day McKinley, Roosevelt and President Harding. George Washington set the precedent. He was a vestryman of two parishes—Pohick, seven miles from Mount Vernon, and Alexandria, ten—either of which he attended every Sunday when weather and roads permitted. The Pohick church was built largely at his personal expense. George Washington was a strong man among strong men—a 'man of the world,' a soldier and statesman, but his religion was a part of his life. He paid homage to God as a part of his privilege and obligation. We find him on his knees in the woods of Valley Forge or reading the burial service at the grave of a fallen soldier, as he read the lessons in his parish church. An anecdote of Yorktown suggests the same religious interest.

"Standing in an exposed place, we are told, a cannon ball from the enemy threw dirt all over the chaplain, Rev. Mr. Evans, who stood beside him. The parson turned to Washington, holding out his bespattered hat, and began, 'Look here, general—' 'You had better take it home, chaplain,' said Washington, 'and show it to the family!' The point is that even in the stress of the battlefield the general's companion was the chaplain. "We all know that real religion is a part of every real man. Common decency, as well as common sense, calls us to common public worship—not as a sanctimonious profession of 'goodness,' but as a manly homage to God."

OCEAN VIEW AND POTRERO CHURCHES GET TOGETHER

In line with the progress toward church unity, the Congregationalists and Episcopal Church have recently agreed on the yielding each to the other in two different parishes, the Potrero, San Francisco, and Ocean View. The Church of the Good Samaritan, Potrero, becomes the Community Church of that district, and the Congregational Church that of Ocean View. The local clergyman, the Rev. E. H. Molony, cordially recommended that the Episcopal Church gave way to the Congregational in Ocean View. The retiring church in each case recommends its members and children to attend the other church and Sunday school, while retaining the privilege of sick ministration and communion each month with united congregations if desired.

MIGHTY RIVER IS THE YUKON

Ranks as One of the World's Greatest,
Though It Was Long Comparatively Unknown.

The Yukon is one of the great rivers of the world. It is more than 2,300 miles long and is both the longest and the largest river flowing into Pacific waters in the western hemisphere, surpassing by a considerable margin its nearest competitors, the Columbia and the Colorado. Among all the rivers of North America the Yukon is surpassed in length only by the Mississippi system and the Mackenzie. It is longer than the St. Lawrence, as well as all the other rivers except the Mississippi system which flows into the Gulf of Mexico or the Atlantic.

The existence of such a large river as the Yukon in the Far North was long unsuspected. A Russian lieutenant, Zagoskin, entered its mouth by boat in 1842 and traversed it for several hundred miles. The Hudson's Bay company had discovered its headwaters in Canada; but the two bits of information were not pieced together. The existence of the river as a stream of great magnitude and length first became really known through the daring and romantic project of installing land telegraph wires between America and Europe across Alaska, Behring strait and the wastes of Siberia. Robert Kennicott, in connection with this enterprise blazed the Yukon trail by descending the river in 1895. The first trading steamer ascended the stream in 1899. The Yukon really came into its own with the discovery of gold in the Klondike in 1896.—Bulletin of National Geographical Society.

WHISKERS IN ANCIENT EGYPT

Believed to Have Been Introduced into Country By Horsemen Who Came From Asia.

What could have been the explanation of black, bushy whiskers on an ancient Egyptian? Historically, socially, customarily, they did not belong there, and yet, thus accoutred lay the occupant of one of the tombs in the Theban necropolis which the Metropolitan museum's expedition at that place chanced to excavate. He was named Atefamon, "Charloteer to the General," and in his coffin they found his whip, broken into three pieces, and tied up in its own lash. Now, in his day, T. E. Winlock explains, horses and chariots had long been used in Egypt, but it was still remembered that they had first come from Asia, and probably the best horses and the most skillful drivers were aliens. The Asiatics always wore beards, and so this Egyptian charioteer, to be in the height of fashion, imitated them. "It makes me think of the days of horses and carriages in this country," adds the archeologist, "when the most stylish coachmen were English, and so those of Yankee birth copied the English side whiskers."—New York Evening Post.

Whaling Customs of Eskimos.

The Eskimos of the Arctic have strange customs. It has proved difficult to convert them to the ways of the white man. Of the practical arts of the latter, the natives have adopted whale boats and firearms. The methods of hunting are their own.

When a whale is captured the boats of the hunters assemble at the scene as quickly as they can. The boats are lined out, with sails up, each towing the other, the dead whale bringing up the rear, and the slow voyage homeward is begun.

When the whaling season is over, each successful hunter gives a naluka-tak (celebration), with the rest of the villagers as his guests. There is feasting, blanket tossing, and a dance at the end of the program, which often lasts for days. All the old men and women, and the sick Eskimos, are guests of the prince of the whale hunt. Those not able to walk are carried by the men or hauled on sleds to that part of the village selected for the feast.

Tall Mountains.

At least 60 mountains in California rise more than 13,000 feet above sea level, but they stand amid a wealth of mountain scenery so rich and varied that they are not considered sufficiently noteworthy to be named, according to the United States geological survey, Department of the Interior. Yet if any one of these unnamed mountain peaks were in the eastern part of the United States it would be visited annually by millions of people. But California has several additional mountain peaks more than 13,000 feet high that have been named, or 130 in all, as well as a dozen that rise above 14,000 feet.

Waste Not.

Mother always cuts Peggy's hair, and as she was about to clear the clippings away the little girl stopped her. "Mother, you're not going to throw my hair away, are you?"

"Yes, my dear. What's the good of keeping it?"

"Why, can't you make it grow on grandpa's head? He's got no hair at all."—London Answers.

Power of Oratory.

"Do you believe in the value of advertising?"

"Certainly," replied the eminent statesman. "Without the publicity given the American flag by patriots who want to serve it—for a consideration—it wouldn't mean half as much to some people as it does now."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Substantial Truth in Statement That
Courtesy Is Worth All the Expenditure Involved.

Just as we have absorbed the information from one writer that courtesy should play a prominent part in every business transaction because it costs nothing, we ran across a bulletin of the Standard Oil company of California which states that $1,000,000 was invested in telegraph tolls last year to transmit a single word—"Please."

So courtesy does cost something, the Philadelphia Record observes. If we had several months to spend in research we might find the basis for an estimate that courtesy in newspaper advertising alone costs several million dollars. But whatever the cost, it is worth it.

Courtesy, cordiality and sincerity are three big factors in the success of an advertisement. People like to do business with dealers whose messages radiate good will, a friendly spirit, a desire to please. During the recent holiday rush some stores suggested that the purchasers should carry small packages home with them instead of having them delivered. The proposal was put forward in the same way in which one asks a favor of a friend, and it proved very effective. Suppose the stores had said, instead: "Positively, no small packages delivered"—can you imagine the result?

The money that the business men of the country spend on "please" in their advertising and elsewhere, is an investment that yields handsome cash dividends. One might as well try to run a gasoline motor without oil as to dispense with this courtesy lubricant that does away with friction in the contacts of human relationship.

FIT MATE FOR FAMOUS SCOUT

Wife of "Buffalo Bill" Frequently Accompanied Him on Expeditions
Filled With Danger.

Louisa Smith's first encounter with William Frederick Cody, later and more popularly known as "Buffalo Bill," was exceedingly informal. Cody had been brought to the Smith home by a mutual friend and before he had even been introduced was the astonished recipient of a resolute slap on the mouth from Louisa, a punishment which soon grew into love. Their marriage took place shortly after and their life together was extremely happy.

Mrs. Cody proved an ideal wife for "Buffalo Bill." She was with him on a great many of his trips and enjoyed them as much as he did himself. Intrepid and daring, there was no expedition which appeared too dangerous for her to go on.

Mrs. Cody outlived her husband, as well as all of her children, and the latter part of her life, spent in retirement in the West, was lived in a dream world, populated by her loved ones.

Adorable Shams.

In the course of a lecture on "Early English Renaissance Architecture and Some Practical Considerations," which R. P. Oglesby delivered, the lecturer remarked that "sham" was not a nice word; but the outer dome of St. Paul's cathedral was an adorable sham. Wren said: "I am going to give you a beautiful dome outside, and an appropriate dome inside, and what they are made of, or how they support my stone lantern and cross, weighing 700 tons, is my business and nobody else's." Neither of the domes in any way supported the lantern. The upper portions of the interior of St. Peter's at Rome were, he added, shams—cleverly decorated to look like marble. Most of the great Palladio's best works at Vicenza and other places was sham—merely stucco laid on brickwork, but none the less beautiful in form; and our own architect Nash introduced stucco into London, as in Regent street and elsewhere.—London Times.

Iceland in History.

A visitor to Iceland has described the view from the plateau overlooking the plain of Thingvellir, where the parliament of the commonwealth was held. He speaks of magnificent gorges, rivers, waterfalls, of a lake of sapphire set within a circle of emerald hills and snow-capped mountains, altogether a picture of enchanting beauty. The magnificence of its historical and literary traditions have enriched the ages, and some of their Icelandic translations are now being adopted by other nations. The spoken language of today differs so little from that of the Twelfth century that the Sagas of that time continue to be, in the original text, the daily reading of all classes. The remarkable revival of art and literature and general prosperity has come from the reawakening of the national spirit early in the Nineteenth century.

Queer Earthquake Prank.

An earthquake that shook India not so long ago was remarkable for the curiously distorting effects it produced on standing objects. Similar effects have been noticed from other earthquakes, but seldom to so striking an extent. In an official report in the matter it is described how this earthquake twisted a lofty monument at Chatak. The monument was an obelisk of brick, coated with plaster, more than sixty feet tall and twelve feet square at the base. About six feet of the top was broken off and thrown to the east. Then a piece twenty feet in height was separated twenty-three feet above the ground and twisted in a direction opposite to the motion of the lands of a watch, but without falling.

TOO MUCH EXPENSE

There is some complaint over the levying of the necessary tax for financing the soldier bonus. This affords an opportunity for the periodical explosions which we require to let off surplus steam.

But our explosions should be turned upon a different subject. There is too much waste in the public service. This waste is in the form of man power—or perhaps it might be more appropriate to term it barnacle power.

Many government, state and other office holders and employees feel that they are doing nobly by their country if they stalk majestically into their offices at 9 in the morning, loaf around a while, put in a few hours of leisure work, and go home or out among "the boys" at 4 or 4:30 in the afternoon.

In the business world the average man gets to work at 8 in the morning, takes an hour for lunch, and considers his day's work over at 5 in the afternoon—and not a minute sooner. And those eight hours are put in at good, hard work. The loafer soon finds himself out of a job.

The business man has just as many brains and knows how to use them to just as good advantage as does the public office holder or employee.

Is there any good reason why one should be required to "hit the pace," and the other be permitted to sidestep it?

If our public affairs were managed and conducted with the same degree of executive ability and prudence we display in commercial life we could discharge one-fourth of our public office personnel and still be in better condition than we are today.

The average man hangs on to his own money, but too many of us are ready to "let it fly" when the treasury pays the bills.

Eliminate the official waste and extravagance and financing the bonus will not require the addition of one cent of taxation.

Of course, an army of political barnacles would have to get out and go to work, but that is what the Lord intended they should do.

The boys who fought the war are more entitled to consideration than the barnacles who are now receiving it.

THE THINGS SOME PEOPLE FORGET

The editor and his family must eat three meals a day, or nature will object.

They must wear the usual amount of clothing, or the public will object.

They must pay their own bills promptly, or their creditors will object.

To do these things requires money, but so long as good but thoughtless citizens forget to pay the editor what they owe him it is difficult to understand how he can be expected to meet his own obligations.

Some people—excellent citizens, too—feel just a little offended when we send them a subscription bill. They seem to think that we question their intention to pay, which is not the case at all. We, however, can not afford to feel peeved when we get a bill for something we owe. We simply scrape around and pay up.

The day of "throwing out hints" and of begging subscribers to "come in and pay up" has passed. A simple statement of fact is all that is required for people who are as good as gold for what they owe us.

This is a statement of fact.

IT MAKES RED BLOOD

Does your boy like to play ball? Is your girl fond of basketball? Do they find pleasure in the numerous sports to which children incline?

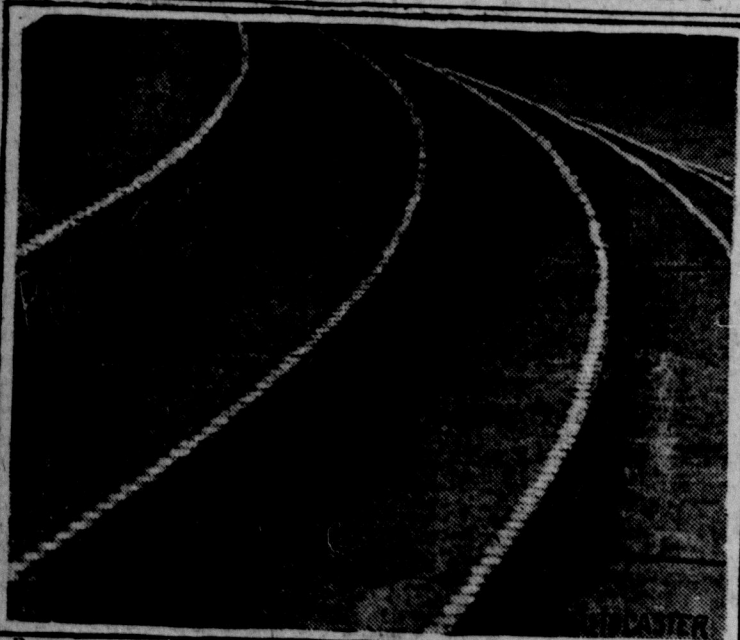

Let them go to it, and stay with it, and get the full benefit of it. Every hour of healthy sport aids in the development of mind and body, and prepares them for surmounting the obstacles of life.

It would be profitable if a general playground could be arranged in this town, equipped with the various means of exercise and enjoyment that are found in such places.

Healthy sport makes red-blooded men and women of our children. Caging them: up too often produces weaklings and sissies.

Poltiness costs nothing, but its value is not to be measured by its cost.

SOCIAL CRIMINALS.

Those who insist on their "rights" and refuse to meet the corresponding obligations fall in a sacred trust, and are called social criminals. Why?

They have taken everything from parents, friends, society, and this country. In return they have harmed not only themselves but other people, by not living up to the laws that have been made, by wasting other people's time, by injuring all with whom they come in contact, and this because they are not willing to live up to their obligations.

Apply this to school life. The teachers work hard and faithfully to help give the students a proper education, and in return there are always those who shirk the responsibilities of their obligations. They refuse to prepare their lessons, or do them half-heartedly, and waste time in the study hall which is really given them for their benefit to prepare their work in.

It is our right to make good laws, but it is also our obligation to see that the same are enforced and obeyed by each and every individual.

There is an obligation with every right. Students, why not find out your obligations and do them, and not have the excuse that you don't know what they are?

VOLLEY-BALL GAME FRIDAY.

On Friday, March 3d, the high school volley-ball team will meet the Mountain View girls at 3:30 o'clock in the first of the G. P. A. L. volley-ball games.

The South City girls have to win the championship again this year in order to retain the cup awarded them last year by Mr. Cavassa. The public is cordially invited to see them game played.

The team will be chosen from the following girls: Laura Baldini, Alice Elmers, Beatrice Farrell, Genevieve Schmidt, Elizabeth Coffinberry, Sylvia Thomas, Anna Carli, Rita Castro, Gertha Lane, Zelma Cox, Zilpha Dunlap, Althea Spangler, Marian Fischer, and Margaret Murray.

HOCKEY GAME.

On Monday, February 27th, South San Francisco played a hockey game with San Jose on the local court.

The score was 4 to 0 in favor of San Jose. The first quarter the victors got two goals, and in the third quarter they secured the other two points.

Both sides played a good, clean game. Two or three of the girls were struck by their opponents, but that is all in the game. After the game the local team gave the San Jose team a spread. All seemed to enjoy themselves.

We are very sorry that this was our last game of hockey, but hope to play again next season and make a better record.

SOUTH CITY VS. SAN MATEO.

The South City basket-ball team met its defeat at the hands of San Mateo Thursday afternoon on the local court. Our team was badly crippled, four of the first team boys being out on account of illness. The boys that did play put up a hard fight, and when the whistle blew for the first half the score was 11-15 in favor of San Mateo. The team kept up the good work until the third quarter, when the score stood 16-29, and still in the opponents' favor. The last quarter they fell down, and when the final whistle sounded the score was 18-56, and San Mateo was the victorious one.

VOLLEY-BALL GAME.

On last Tuesday afternoon the volley-ball team played its first practice game. The San Mateo team was its opponent.

Our team certainly showed them what it could do when it once got started. The game was somewhat one-sided, as the San Mateo team could not compare with our team.

Needless to say, our girls won all the games which were played by a large number of points.

A TRIFLE TOO INQUISITIVE.

Miss Franklin (in first year history) — In ancient times the law was very severe and if a man caused another man to lose an eye he also lost an eye. Rousseau—But suppose the criminal was already blind?

— It is said that one of my ancestors walked around the entire state of Maine when very old and feeble.

— Maybe the person that told you that forgot to mention that it was only the map of Maine he walked around.

(Centina enters her class room and finds Burt sitting on top of her desk.)

Centina—Say, Burt, haven't you a seat of your own?
Burt—Well, I think I have.

GRANDE SERATA TEATRALE SOTTO GLI AUSPICI DEL CIRCOLO REGINA ELENA NO. 97, U. A. O. D.

La sera di Domenica, 12 Marzo, verrà tenuta al Fraternal Hall, un grande spettacolo di varietà al quale ogni italiano di South San Francisco dovrebbe intervenire.

Diversi dei talenti locali si offriranno generosamente, con canto e musica. Più particolare sarà però una recita dei fanciulli italiani del paese i quali faranno sgansciare il pubblico dalle risa.

Accorrete dunque tutti, poiché molto sarà il divertimento e poco la spesa. E che cosa chieder di più?

I MERCIAT PARLANO DI COSTRUZIONI

Alla riunione dell'associazione dei merciat di South San Francisco Martedì sera della settimana scorsa, fu discusso grandemente il modo d'incoraggiare la costruzione di altre case in paese.

Un comitato, consistente di H. Cavassa, H. Viette, A. J. Eschebach e Robert Speed, fu appunto per cercare un piano ragionevole.

Charles Elder fu eletto segretario dell'associazione.

A Beautiful Thought
When the things get so bad you believe they couldn't become worse, you're often surprised to discover that they can.

A "happy medium"—one who is making money out of being one.

A Trustworthy Business Associate

A successful housekeeper these days is a business woman. She has to be. She has her budget systems and account books. She figures closely to keep expenses down. She is a wise, shrewd buyer.

She wastes neither time nor money. She knows exactly what she wants and where to get it at the most advantageous price.

She'll tell you that she is a diligent reader of newspaper advertising. She considers it a trustworthy business associate. It brings her cleaner food—improves her personal appearance—eases her daily task—helps take the humdrum out of life—tells her when, where and how to find things pleasurable and profitable—makes it possible for her to get one hundred cents' worth of real value for every dollar she spends.

MECCA UNVEILED

Pilgrims Encamped Outside Mecca.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Though the World War changed the temporal map of Arabia, raising the narrow strip of the Hejaz, formerly a Turkish province, into a kingdom, it did not alter the place in the world of Mecca, chief of the Hejaz cities. That mystic city under Arab control still is the center of all Mohammedan thought and action as it was under the Turks.

The importance of Mecca is not due to its resident population of perhaps 100,000, but to the more than 200,000 pilgrims who visit it each year from every nation of Islam. Statistics are hopelessly contradictory and confusing regarding the number of annual visitors. According to Turkish official estimates, in 1907 there were no less than 280,000 pilgrims. It is a marvel how so many thousands can find food, shelter, and, most of all, drink, in such a desert city.

The religious capital of Islam, and now the temporal capital of the new kingdom of the Hejaz, affords an index to the growth and strength of Mohammedanism in various parts of the world, for one can rightly gauge the strength of religious fervor in this great non-Christian faith by the number of those who go on pilgrimage.

From Java, Bengal, West Africa, Cape Colony and Russia, as well as from the most inaccessible provinces of China, they come every year and return to their native land—if they escape the hardships of travel—to tell of the greatness and glory of their faith, however much they may have been disappointed in the actual condition of the city and its sacred buildings.

When we consider Mecca, Mohammed's words of prophecy in the second chapter of his book seem to have been literally fulfilled: "So we have made you the center of the nations that you should bear witness to men." The old pagan pantheon has become the religious sanctuary and the goal of universal pilgrimage for one-seventh of the human race.

From Sierra Leone to Canton, and from Tobolsk to Cape Town, the faithful spread their prayer carpets, build their houses (in fulfillment of an important tradition, even their out-houses!), and bury their dead oriented toward Mecca. If the old world could be viewed from another planet, its details disclosed, the observer would see concentric circles of living worshippers covering an ever-widening area, and one would also see vast areas of Moslem cemeteries with every grave dug with its main axis toward the sacred city.

Its Mysteries Laid Bare.

Mecca is no longer a veiled city. A score of intrepid travelers have unveiled it. From Bartema, Wild and Joseph Pitts to Burton, Burckhardt, Hargraves and Courtelmont, they took their lives in their hands, herded with strange companions, underwent untold hardships, and by luck or pluck came scatheless out of this lion's den of Islam. According to Doughty, scarcely a pilgrimage takes place without some persons being put to death as intruding Christians. An educated and pious Moslem in Cairo admitted recently that when he went on pilgrimage and took pictures of the city his life was endangered more than once by the fanaticism of the inhabitants. However, there are many who believe that the establishment of the new kingdom will mean the removal of restrictions against non-Moslems.

The mixture of races brought about in Hejaz province for so many centuries by the pilgrimages has not been conducive to morals or good government. No one who has read the account of social life at Mecca, as given by Hargraves and other travelers, including Moslem pilgrims themselves, can doubt the need for social reform in that city. Mecca is the microcosm of Islam in its religious life and aspirations. According to Hargraves: "It is Islam, the official religion, which brings together and amalgamates all the heterogeneous constituents of Meccan life. On the other hand, this society itself welds into a chaotic whole the prejudices and superstitions of all countries." In other words, Mecca is the sink-hole of Islam. All witnesses agree as to the flagrant immorality which pervades the streets, and even the mosque, of the sacred city, the prevalence of the slave trade, the fleeing of pilgrims, and the corruption of the late Turkish government.

The post office at Mecca, under Turkish regime, was certainly unique. Sacks of letters were thrown out into the narrow street leading to the post office, and there sorted by the pilgrims themselves, who opened them and took their letters and those of their friends also. A similar system prevailed at Medina, Yenbo and Jiddah, King Hussein of Hejaz, however, has taken steps to join the International Postal Union, and has had stamps printed in Egypt bearing the inscription "Hejaz Post."

Foreigners Handle Its Commerce.
The commerce of Mecca is entirely in the hands of foreigners, mostly Indians, who sell rosaries, carpets and silk stuffs. One of the main occupations of the silversmiths is the manufacture of rings, which are supposed to be constructed from silver that was once part of the sacred temple doors, and are reputed to be an effective remedy for certain ills. Most of the natives, however, earn their living as guides to the pilgrims and grow wealthy during the season.

Sacred Mosque and Ka'aba.

The sacred mosque, Mesjid el Haram with the Ka'aba as its center, is located in the middle of the city. Mecca lies in a hot, sandy valley, absolutely without verdure and surrounded by rocky, barren hills, destitute of trees or even shrubs. The valley is about 300 feet wide, and 4,000 feet long, and slopes toward the south. The Ka'aba, or House of God (Belt Allah), is located in the bed of the valley. All the streets slope toward it and it stands, as it were, in the pit of a theater.

The Ka'aba proper stands in an oblong space 250 paces long and 200 broad, surrounded by colonnades, which are used as schools and as a general meeting place for pilgrims. The outer inclosure has 19 gates and six minarets; within the inclosure is the well of Zem Zem, the great pulpit, the staircase used to enter the Ka'aba door, which is high above the ground, and two small mosques called El Kubattain. The remainder of the space is occupied by pavements and gravel, where prayers are said by the four orthodox sects, each having its own allotted space.

In the southeast corner of the Ka'aba, about five feet from the ground, is the famous Black Stone, the oldest treasure of Mecca. The stone is a fragment resembling black volcanic rock, sprinkled with reddish crystals.

Arriving within a short distance of Mecca, orthodox pilgrims, male and female, put off their ordinary clothing and assume the ihram, which consists of two pieces of white cloth, one tied around the loins and the other thrown over the back. Sandals may be worn, but not shoes, and the head must be uncovered. After certain ablutions the pilgrim enters the mosque, kisses the Black Stone, and runs around the Ka'aba seven times. After special prayers he proceeds to the place of Abraham, then drinks from the holy well, and once more kisses the Black Stone. After this follows the race between the two hills, Safa and Mirwa.

Little books of ritual prayers to be used by the pilgrims are sold to everyone, and there is great punctiliousness in observing every detail correctly. On the seventh day of the pilgrimage there is a sermon from the grand pulpit. On the eighth day the pilgrim goes to Mina, three miles distant from Mecca, and spends the night. The next morning he leaves for Arafat, another hill a short distance from Mecca, and the following day is the great day of sacrifice, simultaneously observed throughout the whole Moslem world. Early in the morning the pilgrims go to Mina, where they are three pillars, called the Great Devil, the Middle Pillar, and the First One. Here each pilgrim flings seven pebbles to show his hatred of Satan and his love of God. He then performs the sacrifice of a sheep, goat or camel, according to his means, the victim being placed toward the Ka'aba and the knife plunged into the animal's throat with the cry "Allahu Akbar." This ceremony concludes the pilgrimage proper and the pilgrim then begins his journey back home.

CHINA REAL LAND OF CASTE

Conditions There Declared by Travelers to Outclass Even Those Existing in East India.

Chinamen have more caste even than the East Indians. They say you never find one Chinaman in a low condition of life but you will find him employing another Chinaman in a still lower condition. The small Chinese farmer employs a servant, to whom he is lord and master. This mental is compelled to serve him in any capacity that may be required. For instance, when the small Chinese farmer takes a pig to market he does not do it as the Irishman does, by driving the pig along the road. No, he first kills the pig, or makes his "hired man" do it. When the pig is carefully packed on one side of a single wheeled vehicle something like a wheelbarrow. The weight of the proprietor may just balance that of the pig, but if it is greater, then a few boulders are added to even things up. The whole apparatus is then wheeled along the road by the hired man, the Chinese proprietor meanwhile placidly smoking his pipe.

He Paid the Note.

A certain shiftless character had borrowed some money at the bank after having been secured by a hard-working man. Notice was sent; no response. A second notice was sent, but no response. And a third with similar results. Whereupon the guarantor was told to come in and take up the note. Seeing the maker of the note on the street, he asked:

"Didn't you know that note was due?"

Getting an affirmative reply, he further asked:

"Why didn't you take it up?"

This time the shiftless one made reply:

"Didn't you expect to pay it?"

"No!"

"Well, what did you sign it for if you didn't expect to pay it?"

There was no recourse from this question, that's the way it usually stacks up, so the guarantor took up the note and credited the sum to experience.—Farm Life.

How Fruit Worm Gets Into Apple.

Did you ever find a worm away in the core of an apple when there wasn't any sign of a hole on the outside to show where it got in? Well, in the spring, says the Ave Maria, when the trees are all in blossom and look their loveliest, a little moth slipped out of its chrysalis and flew among the blossoms. Then, when the petals of the flowers had fallen, the moth laid an egg in the upturned cup made by the five points of the calyx. In a short time the tiny egg hatched into a small worm, and the little worm bored its way into the apple that was just forming! and there it grew with the apple, meanwhile feeding on it. When the apple falls to the ground, the worm gets out and finds its way into the tree, where it spins a cocoon, from which another moth is hatched the next spring, and so on. The birds search for these fruit worms in the bark of the trees.

Stories of Great Scouts

BEN CLARK, WHOM THE INDIANS CALLED "MIE-NO-TO-WAH."

When General Custer's Fighting Seventh charged down upon Chief Black Kettle's Cheyennes on the Washita to the tune of "Garryowen" that cold November morning in 1893, at his side rode a man whom the Indians recognized, and they shouted to each other "Look out for Red Neck! He's a dead shot!"

Clark played an important part in Custer's campaigns that year, but his most valuable services were performed as a scout for Gen. Nelson Miles in the war with the Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Comanches and Kiowas in 1874. His greatest feat was his part in the rescue of the German sisters, two little white girls who had been captured when their parents were murdered by raiding Cheyennes in their Kansas home.

Two of the girls, Adelaide and Julia Germaine, were recaptured from the Cheyennes when Lieut. Frank Baldwin struck the camp of Chief Gray Beard so suddenly that the Indians had no chance to kill their prisoners, as they usually did. The girls informed General Miles that two of their sisters, Catherine and Sophia Germaine, still were held by another band of the Cheyennes.

Ben Clark immediately set out to discover where they were. After a long search he found that they were in the camp of Chief Stone Calf. General Miles secured a photograph of Julia and Adelaide and on the back of it he wrote a message to the other sisters telling them that every effort was being made to rescue them. He gave this message to a friendly Indian who visited Stone Calf's camp and, unobserved by the Indians, slipped it into the hand of one of the girls.

The general next sent a message to Stone Calf, demanding his surrender and telling him that no mercy would be shown his warriors unless the Germaine girls were brought to the nearest army post alive and unharmed. In a short time Stone Calf came in to the Cheyenne agency, surrendered his white captives and all four sisters were reunited. Ben Clark's scouting had not been in vain.

When the Cheyennes were finally subdued, Clark settled down at Fort Reno, Okla., with them. He became their interpreter in all their dealings with the white men, and the Cheyennes came to honor "Red Neck" as much as they had feared him when he was fighting against them. Later he was custodian of old Fort Reno, and when he died a few years ago, after more than 50 years in the government service, his passing was mourned by white and red men alike.

If a preacher were to tell the whole truth to the average congregation he would probably be invited to repeat it—elsewhere.

Tikes and Teeners Corner

Conducted by "Auntie Ruth"

Dear Auntie Ruth: I am a little doll, Arabella is my name. My mother is a dear little girl that I love very much. February 13th was her ninth birthday, and so I invited some little mothers to come to a surprise party, and of course bring their favorite doll.

And what lovely dollies! Auntie Ruth, you should have seen them. Some had beautiful silk dresses, others were still babies in long clothes. And do you know, two of them had dresses and one a cape that their mothers had worn when they were babies. They were so dear with their smiling faces, and what a picture they made with their pretty mamas. It would have been hard to decide which was the loveliest, the mothers or their dollies.

Helen White sang two selections for us. She has a sweet voice, and every one enjoyed it.

Viola Taylor danced several numbers. Her cousin, Edna Coleman, accompanied her on the piano.

Viola's baby is just learning to walk and say mamma and papa. She is a very well behaved little doll, and so did not interrupt while her mother danced so willingly and so cleverly for us.

Refreshments were served, and as mother came so near being a valentine I thought it would be nice to use red for a color scheme, carried out with hearts for place cards and heart-shaped baskets filled with candy hearts for favors.

Oh, yes! the birthday cake with its red candles must not be forgotten, and we had one for the dollies, too.

Their mothers felt that their babies had quite all the sweets that they should have for one afternoon. So when the dollies' cake was cut, each little mother carefully wrapped a piece in her napkin and carried it home for her dolly to eat later.

Games were played until 5:30; then they all felt that they must hurry home. Mother had a very enjoyable time, and I think that the other little mothers did, too. I know that the dollies did, for they all told me so.

The little mothers were Helen White, Dorothy Coleman, Iolla Kirschberg, Viola Taylor, Isabel Deshier, Ella Schmidt, Tactia Rose, and Violet Lorraine Calhan.

Yours truly,
ARABELLA CALHAN.
226 Monticello street.

My Dear Little Arabella: Your nice little letter reached me promptly and was a delightful surprise. Mr. Editor-Man and I have been hoping for some letters from girls and boys, but we never dreamed of getting one from a dolly. Why, it was like receiving a message from Fairyland.

And such a dear little letter, too! We are printing it in our corner so that everybody can enjoy it with us. Not every dolly is so thoughtful as to plan such a beautiful surprise on her little mother, so I think you much have an unusually nice mother who trained you to be kind and to love to give pleasure to others.

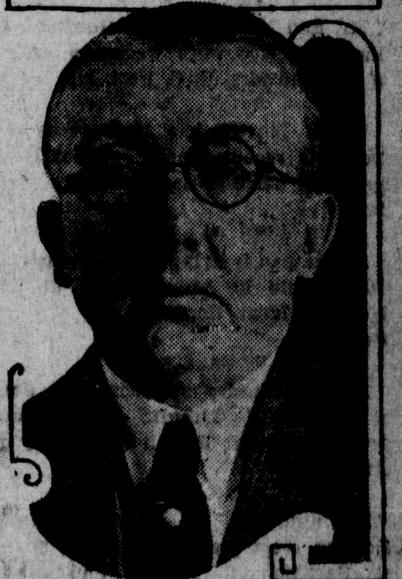

I know it must have been a lovely party, and Auntie Ruth just wishes she could have been a little mouse in a corner that day. Such fun to watch all that happiness. And think of the crumbs from that birthday cake! I'm wondering if some real mice didn't have a party that night.

How do you like "Kittie Witch," Arabella? Do you suppose she can win "Mammy Chloe's" love? Does your little mother have a pet kitten? Ask her and her little guests to tell us about their pets.

Please tell your mother that Auntie Ruth wishes her many happy returns of the day—and the party. I'm sure she is as sweet and pretty as her name—Violet Lorraine. And Miss Arabella, may your own golden curls never turn gray. With much love to all the little girls and all their dolls, good-bye. Come again.

AUNTIE RUTH.

BOOK BY MRS. MAULE STIRS MUCH COMMENT

A book by Mrs. Mary K. Maule, sister-in-law of J. D. Maule of 526 Miller avenue, this city, is creating a sensation in literary circles all over the United States. The author is the mother of Harry Maule, editor of the well-known magazine, "Short Stories." In her book, "God's Anointed," Mrs. Maule treats of religious questions in a rather unorthodox manner. Much of the discussion regarding her book, too, has centered around her treatment of the modern attitude regarding marriage, the author taking the stand that the young people of today enter the marriage relation with little or no preparation for it and ignorant or careless of its highest significance.

The world is growing better. Even blonde stenographers rarely chew gum at their work nowadays.

If he feels flattered at being named on committees, he's still young.

But the fool who is wise in his own conceit probably is happier than one who isn't wise at all.

Be sure you're right, if you can be, but anyway be sure to think you're right.

If you are easily flattered you won't lack for flattery.

A Genial Heckler.

"I was driving along a rough country road the other day," said Lloyd George during an electioneering tour. "and at the foot of a steep hill I saw the signboard, 'Please Slacken the Reins Going Up the Hill.' While reading this it occurred to me that it might be well for people generally to be as kind and considerate in their treatment of their minister as they are of their horses, especially when the load is heavy and the road is steep."

There was a burst of applause from the audience, which appreciated the point of the premier's illustration, but the inevitable wag was present, and he piped up, "Why not try a flivver, George?"
